The Debate in Detail.

Demer bill debate was continued at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

Goodwin, of Fulton, opened the debate in opposition to the Berner bill and in favor of farmers' substitute with the amendments by himself and accepted. He spoke for nearly two hours, holding the attention of the house. He said the of the judiciary committee would ask to withdraw its substitute and would Froude says the popular orator has been the rule of every country which has trusted to him. But let us prove this false. Those who are orators and those who are not, let us prove the benefactors of our country. When the Roman and the Hun concluded their bloody battle on the fields of Châlons and Attilla was routed, tradition says the spirits of the slain revealed the fight that night in the clouds. Legislators convene and dissolve, legislators are born and die, they are laid under the sod and buried in political graves, but this railroad agitation keeps up, that after years rolls round and these railroad bills die and are revived.

Let us now try and settle this question finally. Let us settle it with the spirit of candor and honesty. Not actuated by any selfish or personal interest, but by bill when Judge Lawson was elected to Congress. He said the Olive bill had been repudiated by the people of Georgia.

Mr. Lewis then went into a discussion of freight rates on cotton from Macon to Savannah, he said, was 50 cents a bale, while from a half-way station, nearer Savannah, it was more than three times as much.

The following table shows the rates that the towns were discriminated against, he read a schedule of freight rates from New York to various towns and cities in Georgia showing that the rates to some of the large cities were slightly cheaper than those to towns.

"I am in favor of the Smithville bill," said he, "because it goes a little further than the Berner bill. A drop of vinegar in the ocean would have just as much effect upon the water as the Chappell substitute will have upon the railroad system.

Mr. Wheeler, of Walker, called for the previous question. It was lost by a vote of 59 to 80.

Calvin, of Richmond, then took the floor in favor of the Chappell substitute, but he had barely commenced his argument when the hour of adjournment arrived.

Mr. Calvin will take the floor the first thing this morning.

STATE FINANCES.

A Prominent Georgian Gives a Highly Interesting Talk.

A COMPARISON OF TAX RATES.

The Expenditures of Several Years Ago

Compared with Those of the Present.

One of the most prominent men in Georgia

—a man whose opinions upon all public questions, and especially those bearing upon finance, are regarded everywhere as having great weight—was talking at the Kimball yesterday about the tax rate fixed by the legislature. He was the center of a group of interested listeners, but his talk suddenly ceased when a CONSTITUTION representative joined the group.

He was about to go on.

"I will do so," he said, "on one condition—that is that you will not mention my name."

The promise was given.

"Nothing hinders the property of the people more than high taxation," he began.

"The poorer classes particularly are injured by it—more even than the middle classes and the rich, who are supposed to pay the greater part of the taxes. I have been induced to examine the compilation of statistics from the state treasurer's office used by Mr. Huff, chair-

Mr. Norwood's Speech.

We print elsewhere the speech delivered before the legislature last night by ex-Senator Thomas M. Norwood. From beginning to end it is an interesting document. It touches on questions that are of the profoundest interest to the people of the south and west—the plain people who are the victims of a financial system which was invented for the benefit of the capitalists of the north and east.

The plan which Mr. Norwood proposes to take the place of the subtreasury scheme is worthy the thoughtful attention of those who sympathize with the condition of the people, and the wrongs which they are compelled to suffer under the present system, which enables the capitalists of the east (who are not impossibly called the lords of the treasury) to control and manipulate the currency of the country. Mr. Norwood's plan is suggestive, and it ought to invite discussion. Whether we agree with it or not, we are at least bound to admit that it is a coherent and well-thought-out plan, and that it presents a reasonable, a constitutional and a democratic remedy for our financial ills.

Mr. Norwood has this advantage over those democrats who abuse the farmers because they have had the temerity to advocate a scheme of financial relief—he at least presents a coherent and an elaborate substitute for the subtreasury scheme, and thus recognizes the justice of the demands for financial relief which have proceeded from the oppressed agriculturalists. He is at least logical and sympathetic. Instead of denouncing the farmers as a set of malcontents who are engaged in making an attack on the democratic party, he endeavors to provide a remedy for the financial ills which oppress them.

We shall not undertake here to discuss Mr. Norwood's plan. As we have said, it is elaborately worked out, and our readers can judge of its merits for themselves. We welcome the suggestion he makes, however, as a refreshing contribution to a discussion which has grown tiresome and monotonous on account of the abuse heaped on the farmers, and the suspicious cast on those who sympathize with their efforts to secure financial relief. Let us hope that the proposed plan will divert the attention of some of our young and glittering statesmen from the alleged efforts of the farmers to trample the democratic banner in the dust.

Organizing for Work.

There will be a notable meeting in the building of the Young Men's Christian Association tonight, the largest ever held in that splendid structure. The objects of the meeting have been fully set forth and widely advertised in these columns. It will be a representative meeting, at which Governor Northern, Mayor Hempel, the members of the city council and ministers of the gospel will preside.

The work of the Young Men's Christian Association in Atlanta has the endorsement of the people. It is a work which has been crowned with success in the past, and its future is radiant with promise. The meeting tonight will have good results. The young men are organizing for the fall campaign, and they have mapped out a plan of battle which must result in victory.

A Permanent Banking System.

A writer in the current number of The Forum (Hon. M. D. Harter), presents a plan for a permanent banking system, which is to have a supplementary state system. Mr. Harter makes the present national banking system the basis of the one he proposes, but he would change and modify that system as to make it permanent while at the same time enlarging its functions and increasing its usefulness.

In the first place, to give an outline of Mr. Harter's plan, the list of bonds acceptable as security for circulating notes are to be enlarged so as to include state, county, city and railroad bonds. Street railroad bonds are excluded because their franchises are usually of short duration. According to Mr. Harter, bonds secured by mortgage on farms and other real estate have always proved inferior and usually unsafe security for bank notes. Hence, under his proposed system, real estate, the basis of all wealth, is to be outlawed.

All bonds thus rendered available must be registered, and the principal and interest must be payable in gold of the present standard of weight and fineness. Hence the new system has monometallism as its basis. All such bonds must have been listed for at least five years prior to their deposit for security as circulation, upon at least one stock exchange located in some city of the United States having a population of 100,000 or more. This rule would exclude all bonds (so Mr. Harter says) except those having a well-established character as well as recognized high value.

No bond which has ever been in default for non-payment of interest, or which has sold on any stock exchange below par for within five years, or which has sold on any stock exchange at less than a premium of 5 per cent above par within three years of proposed deposit as security for circulation, is to be accepted under this law. The result of this, Mr. Harter thinks, would be that the bonds deposited as security for circulation would have an average gold market value of at least 110, which would make them today a very much better security for bank note circulation than United States bonds were from 1862 to 1865.

No state bond representing a per capita debt of over two dollars for each of its citizens, no county bond representing a per capita debt of over four dollars, and no city bond representing a per capita debt of over eight dollars, is to be accepted as security for bank notes. All railroad bonds deposited are to be secured by mortgage, and none are to be of the form known as trust or debenture bonds. No bank is to have more than 20 per cent of its bonds on deposit of the issue of any one state, county, city or railroad. Whenever any bond on deposit under this law sells at an average price of less than 105 for a period of thirty days, the controller of the currency is to require it to be replaced by a bond fully meeting the requirements of the proposed law.

There are other provisions in the nature of safeguards, which we need not notice here. Among other things, Mr. Harter's proposed law provides—and this is the important point—that the present United States tax on the circulating notes of state banks shall cease, provided such notes are secured in precisely the same manner as national bank notes, by bonds deposited with the auditor and treasurer of the state; and it further provides that the state in which the bank is located shall guarantee the payment of its circulating notes. This is a sort of extra national twist for which no good reason exists, since if the notes are guarded as those of the national banks would be, no further precaution would seem to be necessary.

The amount of the notes issued by any state bank under this proposed law is to be under the contract of the state in which it is located, and nothing in the law shall restrict the circulating notes of any state bank to 90 per cent of the capital paid in; but no bank shall issue notes in excess of 90 per cent of the par value of the bonds deposited by it to secure the payment of the notes. Mr. Harter says this provision will be recognized as sound by most competent bankers, and he thinks that experience will lead to its extension ultimately to national banks. It gives the banks the power to promptly increase the money circulation when urgently needed, such extra supply being retired under the influence of the 2 per cent tax on circulation—thus giving flexibility to the currency.

We have outlined Mr. Harter's proposed banking scheme at some length, mainly to show those who are inclined to get their bristles up when the subject of state banks is mentioned, that prejudice against these institutions is a mark neither of intelligence nor experience.

Ismaelita Blair.

It appears that the hand of ex-Senator Blair is against every man, if we may judge from the unanimity with which different nations have turned up their noses at him, and people in his own country turn their backs on him.

After having been rejected by the "heathen Chinese," and having failed to pass muster with Chile, Mr. Blair is now spoken of as the successor to Pension Commissioner Raum. The New York Sun, in a scathing editorial, resurrects Mr. Blair's pension record, which, upon the face of it, is anything but savory. It appears that he charged Hannah Ladd, a poor widow in New Hampshire, $200 for securing a pension from the government, on account of a son who had lost his life in the union army. Her husband having become an imbecile, Mrs. Ladd had nothing on earth but a little farm valued at $500. Blair pushed his suit against her for attorney's fees and costs, and obtained a judgment against the poor woman for $200. She had then become a widow, but the relentless process of law was put in execution and a writ was issued against the farm. The judgment was not collected, however. It appears that at the time when the farm was attached, Mr. Blair was looking forward to re-election, and it was not safe from a political standpoint to have a widow sixty-seven years of age turned out of house and home. The whole thing came up in the senate in 1885, and Mr. Blair's conduct drew this stinging comment from one of the senators: "It struck me as a matter of the very highest interest in connection with the apparently extraordinary devotion of the senator to pension interests, that the fact should be found that a widow sixty-seven years old, who had lost her only child in the army, and whose husband, as the senator states, was demented, should be the subject under any circumstances of a suit by the senator in court, by attachment of her only realty possession, a little $500 farm, to recover $200 for his services in this line."

This is the Banquo's ghost that disturbs the senator's peace while he draws $1,000 a month as minister to China, in spite of the protests of the Chinese.

Germany's Latest Move.

Not long ago the public was somewhat surprised to find in The Forum a deliberate attack upon the credit of Russia by Dr. Geffcken, privy counselor to the emperor of Germany. Following an article in which the same writer placed the German emperor before the world in an advantageous light, more stronger by the emphasis it gave to Bismarck's downfall, this attack on Russia appears to have been inspired by the ruler of Germany.

Under these circumstances the European public was astonished to hear last week that William had allowed two Jewish banking houses in Berlin to open subscriptions for the new Russian loan, which a strong French syndicate, headed by The Credit Foncier de France, has undertaken to float in Paris. Much surprise is expressed that this syndicate should undertake to carry a Russian loan of $100,000,000 of 3 per cents at 80 and sell them at 84. But as it is backed by the powerful influence of The Credit Foncier and others that concern can call to its aid, the loan seems likely to go through. The Frenchmen seem to know what they are about, and their preparatory boosting of the Paris bourse already gives promise of their success. This seems all the more surprising at a time when Russia's feeble finances must presently undergo the strain of a reduced revenue, caused by the failure to collect taxes in time of famine.

Cheering as the success of the loan at Paris must be to the czar, he is known to be solicitous that it shall not depend entirely upon French subscriptions, for that would reveal the great Moscow leaning upon the arm of the Gaul. The attitude of English and German capitalists makes this particularly apparent, and the emperor's move, which is on its face a friendly one, evidently has for its real purpose to show the utter feebleness of Russia's credit outside of France. The prompt and unanimous advice of the German press to the capitalists to leave the subscription severely alone, appears to foretell the fate of the loan. Bern-lin's financial position will thus be defined, and it appears that this is just what the emperor was driving at when he performed what seemed to be an act of international courtesy. Remembering the article of the emperor's privy counselor, Dr. Geffcken, no other interpretation of this imperial maneuver seems possible.

Coupled with this stab at Russia's credit was a pacific measure toward France by the removal of the vexatious passport regulations Bismarck had arranged in Alsace-Lorraine. Coming immediately after a speech in which Napoleon was characterized as "The Corsican Parvenu," this last step is unintelligible, unless it be to counteract the effect of that blunder. Strangely enough, the two moves have dispelled the war cloud for the time, as the hasty first impression takes both maneuvers for harbingers of peace.

Republican Troubles.

The squirmings of The Philadelphia Press and the other republican organs of Pennsylvania are amusing to witness. Governor Pattison has just called an extra session of the republican senate of the state to inquire into the rascality of republican officials that has just been revealed by means of the publication of private letters. This action on the part of the democratic governor is heartily endorsed by The Public Ledger, an independent republican newspaper, but The Press, which is an organ pure and simple, goes into convulsions. It says that the action of Governor Pattison is unconstitutional, and that it is simply a political trick intended to make capital for the democrats.

Very well. It is not the fault of Governor Pattison that the republican officials are rascals, and if an investigation of their rascality by their party colleagues is calculated to make capital for the democrats, so be it. Such capital is the legitimate result of an attempt on the part of honest men to bring corrupt officials to justice.

The convulsions of The Press are of unusual significance. They show that the republican party in Pennsylvania is in a bad way, and that this new investigation promises to make matters worse. There is no remedy, we presume, for the present condition of affairs, but The Press can avoid confusion hereafter by insisting that its party elect only honest men to office.

Confidence Restored.

After a period of distrust and depression, the country is blessed by a return of confidence, which the persistent efforts of croakers and wreckers were unable to delay longer, in the face of the tide of prosperity which has already set in. The recent flurry in Wall street appears to have been the forlorn hope of the bears, and conservative business men, who have hesitated even to acknowledge the undeniable strength of our position, are at last throwing off their reserve and openly expressing confidence in the future.

This feeling is strongly expressed by Hon. Roswell P. Flower, the democratic candidate for governor of New York, who is a lifelong banker and is accounted one of the strongest and most sagacious of the men who do business in Wall street. He is quoted as saying: "There is only one way for this market to go and that is up, as all conditions favor it, and the influence of any one man or set of men cannot retard it. We have not yet commenced to feel the influence which the short crops in Europe and our splendid harvest here will exert upon railway earnings and the prices of our securities. We have had no such substantial foundation for a bull market since 1878. I think present quotations will look cheap to people later this year."

The troubles of the Union Pacific company, for which an enormous sum had to be raised, were doubtless used to depress the market, and had the subscription failed, there is no doubt that a collapse of that magnitude would have given a severe shock to public confidence. But the official announcement of the success of the subscription has had the effect of fortifying public confidence, and the fact that seventeen millions were raised on short notice to aid a distressed corporation, brought out, in the strongest light, the unusual strength of the situation. On the same day when the success of this subscription was officially announced, the steamship Bourgoigne arrived from Havre with $2,170,000 of French gold, making the total receipts from abroad over four millions, with 7,000,000 more on steamships about for New York. Within a few days one sixth of the gold we lost in the summer has returned, although the effect of our exports of grain has only begun to be felt. With the heavier gold imports, which all authorities agree must follow, the position of the country becomes stronger every day. Additional strength is given by the steady buying of American railroad securities on the London stock exchange. Usually there has been a selling of Americans there to balance the amount due us on the grain we send over, but now the process is reversed, and the present actions of foreign capitalists tend to increase the balance in our favor, notwithstanding a declaration by Mr. Giffen, of the English board of trade, that Europe would sell everything American and place a premium on gold to force a balance against us.

It is not a little significant that in spite of all the talk to the effect that silver would drive the gold away, the yellow metal is coming in rapidly, while we continue to put out silver certificates on 4,500,000 ounces a month.

The World's Fair in Politics.

Chicago has cause for self-congratulation. Mr. Chaney M. Depew and Mr. J. Sloan Fassett have injected the great exposition into the political campaign in New York, and it threatens to create a wrangle which will result in much free advertising for the windy city and its big show.

The New York Times advises the above-named gentlemen to keep that issue out of the present canvass, but they are not disposed to do so, their object being, as our contemporary states, to defend the action of the republicans in the state senate in 1890, under the dictation of "Boss" Platt, on the world's fair question.

With this action for a text, Mr. Depew is now seeking to produce the impression that it was through the democratic party, dominated by Tammany, that New York lost the fair, in that honest republicans were opposed to its being gobbled by the said democratic party. Out of this the New York republicans hope to make political capital, and they are working it for all it is worth.

Practically, it is worth nothing to them. They are eleventh-hour apologists, and it is now too late to shift their sins upon the shoulders of others. But the issue they are making will be worth much to Chicago in the way of advertising.

Think of thousands of campaign orators talking up the world's fair from the elevation of convenient stumps throughout the great state of New York! "There's millions in it," and from these lengthy harangues Chicago will reap lasting benefits.

These orators will work this world's fair business harder than if they had been hired to do it, until every hamlet in the state will ring with echoes of the great exposition. When the republicans think they have a campaign document they run it until it is out of sight—in the ground, or above it.

We suggest, therefore, that the world's fair directors, in return for their valuable services, present each of them with a brass button and a free ticket to the show.

A Wanton Attack.

It is impossible for the republicans of Ohio to carry on a decent campaign. It is practically led by J. B. Foraker, who is one of the most unscrupulous blackguards known to modern politics. Mr. Murat Halstead, who was a very willing tool in the hands of Foraker, has escaped from the state, but the newspaper with which he has been identified, The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, is still the leading republican organ, and it is still supple enough in the editorial department to carry out the designs of Foraker.

The latest phase of republican blackguardism in Ohio is the attempt to break down the personal credit of Governor Campbell. Foraker and the wretched rascals who train under him have been publishing to the world a statement that Mr. Campbell is hopelessly involved in debt. This publication is made for the purpose of bringing down on the governor such creditors as he may have, and causing a ruin on such assets as he may have, in the hopes of creating a financial collapse, and thus aid in his political defeat.

It is a plan entirely worthy of Foraker, who, according to the testimony taken before a congressional investigating committee, went into partnership with Wood, the forger, in order to ruin a political opponent. It is, we say, entirely worthy of Foraker, but it is not worthy of the persons who have charge of The Commercial Gazette. Surely there ought to be something in the editorial function superior to the cowardly and cheap John rascality displayed in this new attack on Governor Campbell. It is not an attack on his political record; it is not an attack on his party. It is purely and simply an effort to create suspicion among his creditors, if he has any, and to drag him down in business in order the more surely to defeat him politically.

It is a wanton attack on the personal credit of Governor Campbell, and if it does not have the effect of ruining him financially the republicans who are at the bottom of the movement will be greatly disappointed. There is not a campaign in Ohio that does not originate some such piece of rascality similar to this; but if the voters of that state are not hopelessly dishonest and corrupt they will rebuke this wanton attack on Governor Campbell.

JOHN SHERMAN has finished his kitchen in Georgia pine. Foraker, it will be remembered, tried to finish Sherman in hard wood.

THE ALLEGED earthquake in the west were simply the result of the efforts of the democratic party to get down to business.

JOHN SHERMAN admits that he is a free trader in disguise.

THE REPUBLICAN candidate for governor of Massachusetts refuses to meet the democratic candidate in debate. Mr. Allen seems to be a very poor stick any way.

THE DEATH OF DR. BURCHARD leaves a clear field for Brother Blaine. Evidently the Maine statesman didn't know how matters were going to turn out when he pledged himself to Son Russell's pa.

AN ORGAN wants to know why the democrats are opposed to reciprocity. Will the organ kindly point out the reciprocity to which there is democratic opposition?

OLD MAN BLAIR continues to draw his salary as minister to China, with truly republican alacrity.

THE GLOBE-DEMOCRAT says that "the reciprocity treaties are worrying the democrats." Well, reciprocity treaties that don't work are enough to worry anybody. After awhile the republicans will be worried.

ALLEN, the republican candidate for governor of Massachusetts, is now engaged in ousting out the "rebel brigades." The rebel brigades seem to be quite an issue in the Old Bay State.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

TACOMA, WASH., is after the democratic national convention, and has sent a committee east to present its claims. It offers to transport the delegates free of charge on four big palace-car trains starting from Portland, New York, Washington and Jacksonville, and picking up the delegates as they sweep across the continent.

THE CHICAGO GLOBE says that it is now generally conceded that the recent earthquake in St. Louis was caused by Colonel McCullough dropping a double-edged editorial devoted to Harrison's re-election.

It is conceded that if there is a war in Europe the sister of Bernhardt, Mrs. Bell, will be responsible for it. The said correspondents have been having such dull times over there, they are getting bloodthirsty and are doing their best to induce the powers that be to put on the war-paint.

THE RUSSIAN nobility are in comparatively a wretched circumstance as the peasantry. In October there will be nearly nine hundred estates belonging to nobles sold by auction at the instance of the state bank that has loaned them money on mortgages. The estates will bring far less than their mortgage value, on account of the inability of Jews, foreigners, or foreign syndicates to acquire landed property.

IT IS ESTIMATED that the settlement of the last-trimmed cases decided against the government will cost the treasury nearly twenty million dollars. The present cash balance in the treasury is about forty-five million dollars, of which $17,500,000 is in uncallable fractional coin, and $15,000,000 is on deposit in national banks. There are some ten million dollars of matured 4 per cent bonds yet to be heard from, most of which will be presented for redemption.

HOW DOES the campaign in New York? A brief rhymester puts it thus:

"Don't class it
 With Fassett,
 For Flower
 Gains power!"

THE WOMAN who claims to be a sister to Sarah Bernhardt is not handsome to look upon, but she appears to be very strong-minded, since she insists in spite of the Bernhardt's denial, that she and the great French actress are children of the same parent. But Sarah is not inclined to the belief that her younger days were spent in the company of Mrs. Estella Bell, of White River, Cal. The latter is the woman who claims to be the sister of Bernhardt.

Mrs. Bell asserts that Bernhardt's name is not Bernhardt at all, but Sarah King, from Rochester, N. Y. She tells a wonderful story about Sarah's infatuation for the stage, her love for the dresses and jewelry, her beauty and her mysterious disappearance from home.

Then came her discovery in a dressmaker's establishment at Davenport, Ia., and a subsequent escape to Paris, Ill. Recently, while in San Francisco, Sarah said:

"Why, the woman is greatly mistaken, that is all. It is ridiculous to say that I am an American. My appearance is essentially French. I was born in Paris, and many people there have known me since I was a little child. I lived in Paris until I came to this country on my first tour."

THERE IS now a bright prospect of the establishment at Washington of a great university that shall be all that the name implies, of which the chief promoter is Bishop Hurst, of the Methodist Episcopal church. Ten million dollars will be needed, and an appeal has been made to the church to subscribe that amount. Bishop Hurst expresses confidence that the sum can be obtained without difficulty, and when the large numerical strength of the church is considered, the faith of the bishop appears to be well founded.

THE WALLA WALLA UNION-JOURNAL is responsible for the statement, which is interesting in time, that a number of society ladies of Tacoma have organized a Rainy Day Club, the sole object of the club being to encourage the wearing on wet days of dresses that do not extend to the ankles. It is probably a protest against the threatened revival of the fashion of wearing sweeping trains, and is in the interest of sense and cleanliness.

THE WONDERFUL crops and the abundance of general products in the United States this year, says The New York Sun, seem to be a family blessing, bestowed without regard to where the individual members may be located, from the Arctic Circle to the gulf, and covering half the world in longitude. This is really noteworthy, considering the hard times afflicting the rest of the world with equal impartiality.

A SIDE SHOW.

The Billville Banner.

Since our last issue we were elected mayor of the town, and as we were elected delinquent subscriber to The Banner $10 and costs, we're as flush as can be. All persons indebted to us will save money by coming forward and settling before we send our bill after them.

We have lately been using the patent pants stretcher which was presented to us by a traveling peddler. As we only had one pair of pants, we couldn't afford to lay up while they were being stretched. Thus are the inventions of genius rendered useless!

Major Brown, who promised to marry the Widow Smith, and then ran away, has returned home. The widow caught him in South America. He is now in the city, and he has a new silver, has just broken out in a rash on his face. He must have a tenacious memory to keep in mind an exhibition in Chicago as the wife of years—Chicago Inter-Occ.

You're right, old boy; we've got the best security the world has ever known. We remembered that first kiss because the old man happened along just at that critical moment and kicked us clean over a ten-rail fence.

Our foramen, who was sacred and fathered three months ago found it impossible to get the tar and feathers off, but it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. He made the best of it, closed a contract with a dime museum manager, and is now exhibiting in Chicago as the wife of a man from Georgia, at a salary of $60 a week. Some men are born lucky!

As mayor of the town, we granted an absolute divorce to the Widow Jones $1000. As she would not leave the town, we immediately married her our brother-in-law, and borrowed $1000 from her on the spot. Public office is a great profit!

THE GEORGIA EDITOR is trying themselves on queer obituaries. Here is the latest, from The Savannah Gazette:

"OUR LITTLE LOVEJOY.
 "Here lies LOVEJOY, our precious boy.
 "Whose age was one and seven;
 "If he'd not picked the nule that kicked "He'd not be now in heaven."

A newspaper is peeping from the ashes of The Savannah Times. The Georgia editor is able to fight fire here and hereafter.

Slowly, but surely, the editorial position is getting there. The editor of one of our weekly exchanges boasts that he is now serving on the staff of the Georgia editor.

The Savannah News has discovered that "Old Grimes" is really dead, and that he lived in Bulloch county. And yet there are people who say they never find anything of a startling nature in the columns of our staid contemporary!

Says The Athens Banner: "THE CONSTITUTION has caught the car was an old-time colored man. He was one and seven; if he'd not picked the nule that kicked he'd not be now in heaven."

A Colored Chesterfield.
 From The Detroit Free Press.
 Everybody who has been out to Kansas City, in Missouri, knows where Delaware street is. It is as well known to the people out there as the Strand is known to London people, or Griswold street to Detroiters. Several days ago I got on one of the cable cars that run along that street, and after some effort secured a seat. There was a rush at that particular corner and people had to scramble if they wanted places. Among the passengers I noticed a colored man who was an old-time colored man. He wore a blue suit with brass buttons, all so old that you could not tell the blue from the dirt and faded patches on the coat. There was something queer about the old fellow—he was a bunch back in a small way and one of his legs seemed useless. Soon after the car started it was noticed that two women were standing in the crowded aisle. The man with the old fellow was a bunch back in a small way and one of his legs seemed useless. Soon after the car started it was noticed that two women were standing in the crowded aisle.

Just as it did so the old colored man started to arise, laid in hand, holding one finger out towards the ladies, trying to attract her attention. When the cable train lurched he pitched forward from his half-standing position, falling from the side of the car to the stony street.

When the crowd picked the old fellow up he was dazed and irrational.

"Don't rest me, mister off'er," he was saying. "I only wanted to give my seat to dat lady wid dem bun's."

"O! the off'er of the car where it had stopped and went to the old man. She had him cared for that night, but that was her only chance to show her feeling to the living spirit. He died in the morning and was buried in the evening. Later, his body was taken up and put in one of Kansas City's best cemeteries with this inscription on a handsome headstone of mottled red granite:

 "Can you afford to dress me well if I marry you?"
 "It depends upon what you consider being dressed well. If you mean French dresses from Paris, I can't afford them; nor do you need them."

"I don't."
 "No. Your beauty needs no adornment, and it will always eclipse any dress you wear, no matter how fine or how expensive it may be. No one that looks at you sees your dress. The beauty of face and perfection of figure only are noted. All fiery pink lips to insignificance beside them. What satin is there like your skin? What silk like your hair? What colors to compare with your lips, cheeks and eyes?"
 "John, I am yours."

LOST IN THE BUSH.

I was harpessed on a New Bedford wharf in '76 and we were lying in a small boat. New Zealand to make repairs. We were years from home and had yet two years stay, so I determined to run away.

The nearest settlement was a lumber about thirty miles away. No sailor dare to harbor a runaway, as the English is very strict in this respect, so I knew I must expect no help from shore.

The Maori natives swarmed about the and are noted for their great skill as trackers. I knew a few pounds of tobacco would win a small army of them after me at a moment's notice.

One dark evening, when several boats were lying alongside, I took my bundle of food and a short whaling lance and slipped into a boat unseen. The strong wind bore me rapidly away from the wharf and I was now rowing slowly across the bay.

I landed about a mile from the wharf and then I was alone. I kept the water, knowing that long before dawn the incoming tide would cover my tracks, even the lynx-eyed Maoris. I hurried until I had covered many miles. Then I took advantage of a rocky strip of beach and entered the dense forest.

All the next day I picked my way over rocky hills. Water was plenty, and I had a few small fish, but I was not satisfied. I camped again in the

Some Interesting Young Men Caught In a Snap.

There was a clever surprise party at police headquarters yesterday.

Madame Looney, who is the proprietress of a notorious house on the corner of Rhodes and Elliott streets, was arrested on the charge of keeping a house of prostitution.

A party of four or five young men, "the friends" of the girls, were also along to hear what disposition would be made of the case, and to render any aid that the case and circumstances demanded.

Captain Couch seeing the youth and deplorable condition of the girls, and calling to mind certain stories that have been in circulation regarding the Looney woman's house and inmates, decided to question these girls some.

He called the girls into an adjoining room, motioned them to seats, and began to propound a series of questions regarding their age, names, parentage, etc.

The Looney woman, regarding this action with suspicion, evidently thinking it meant trouble to her, whispered in an excited manner to the boys with the party to conceal themselves at the door and hear what Captain Couch was saying to the girls.

Captain Couch was close enough to hear what the woman said, and as she in her excitement undoubtedly spoke louder than she intended to, the officer paid no attention to what the woman said, but continued the examination of the girls, and got the very information he wanted.

He then went into the recorder's room, and to be sure he was not mistaken in what the woman had said in regard to eavesdropping him, he asked one of the clerks in the office about it, and his suspicions were verified.

Captain Couch stepped out into the hall and inquired of the young men what their business was hanging around after these women. They made some lame defense of their conduct, but by no means a satisfactory one.

Then, under instruction from Captain Couch, they were all summoned to appear in court today and tell what they know about the Looney house and its inmates.

These "friends" were surprised, not to say excited, and their appearance today may bring out an interesting story. The occupants of Looney's house are mostly real young girls, and some of them have pitiable histories.

There was a little girl in the party yesterday that is not over fifteen years old, who is in a delicate condition, and charges the Looney woman with the most inhuman and brutal treatment. The girl is a pale, delicate creature and her face is decidedly more suggestive of misfortune than crime.

She is from South Carolina and is said to be from a good family. Madame Looney was locked up on Captain Couch's conclusion to investigate the charges made against her by the girls, but after a few hours put up her watch for her appearance in court today.

The authorities are going to make a thorough investigation of these charges, and see if something can't be done for the girls.

TOPICS TALKED ABOUT.

Mr. D. W. Appler and Mr. L. E. O'Keefe have formed a partnership under the name of Appler & O'Keefe for the purpose of conducting the real estate business.

Their office will be at 6 West Wall street, and they begin under the most favorable auspices. There are no two men in Atlanta better known than "Dave" Appler and Captain O'Keefe, and the new firm will be given a warm and hearty welcome.

Everybody who knows them will join in wishing them every success in their new venture.

Nobody could have had a warmer reception than Major Stahlman received when he reached Atlanta yesterday. Since his last visit, the major has made an extended tour of Europe, and he returns, apparently, greatly improved in health.

Mr. Lewis Thomas, who is to succeed Mr. Frank M. O'Brien as solicitor of the criminal court of Atlanta, had some good practice yesterday in Judge Richard H. Clark's court.

Solicitor General Charles Hill was absent, and Mr. Thomas filled his place to the satisfaction of the court, but to the extreme disgust of the malefactors, who felt the rigor of his denunciation. He secured conviction in a number of cases, which he managed adroitly.

Mr. C. C. Nichols, of THE CONSTITUTION business staff, reached the city yesterday after a wedding journey of several months spent in Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Nichols will be warmly welcomed by their many friends. Speaking of dudes—but that's another story.

Tonight at Prohibition Hall there will be a lecture from Dr. W. A. Williams—a reply to Ingersoll. Dr. Williams is a brilliant, well-educated gentleman, who was once a convert to Ingersollism, but who has seen the error of his ways. There will be no admission fee charged tonight, and the public is invited.

A shingle was suspended over the door of 404 North Broad street yesterday, that bears the inscription: "Hawthorne & Negley, Real Estate and Stock Brokers."

The firm is composed of Charles W. Hawthorne, son of Dr. J. B. Hawthorne, and A. G. Negley, Jr., formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. Negley is the son of Major A. G. Negley, one of the best known civil engineers in the country. He has lived in Atlanta about three years, and has located in Atlanta permanently. The young men are both enterprising and have many friends.

On Friday evening, at the Kimball, a complimentary reception will be given to Dr. Don Bosworth, who has recently returned from Europe. The reception will be given by the friends of the genial doctor, and will doubtless be a delightful affair.

Eclectic College Opening.—The Georgia College of Eclectic Medicine and Surgery, at 42 South Butler street, Atlanta, will commence its winter course of lectures today. An opening address will be delivered by Mr. A. A. Murphy at 11 o'clock a.m. The public cordially invited.

THE TECH OPENS.

School opens with Two Hundred Students.

AN INCREASE OF OVER FIFTY.

Most Promising Outlook for the School. Dr. Hopkins's Trip to Europe. The Opening.

The Technological school opened yesterday morning. The campus was alive with boys and men. There were old students returning to serve on their unexpired terms, and there were new students just entering. There were fathers and mothers who came along to give "my boy" a good send-off on the road to learning and whither in his ear a last bit of advice or parental admonition.

It was a sight worth seeing. You could easily tell the law recruit fresh from the soil from the veteran senior or over-confident "muddler." There were all kinds of boys. Here was a group of fiery, untrained boys just entering upon the joys of a collegian's life. There was a knot of new "rats" with a shivering morning, gazing open-eyed, open-mouthed at the machinery and watching the workmen. Some of the new boys were a study. Here is one who looks as if they drained off some old pond and found him. He stands for an hour listening to the clock-like stroke of the glisten'g engine. He reads all the notices and signs on the walls with the deliberation and air of an antiquarian solving the problem looked up in some Egyptian hieroglyphics. He pores over the bulletin boards as if the notices and schedules were more interesting than all things else.

Today is examination day for applicants. Many are going to walk the dark and thorny path of preparation without passing an examination; while others, at the sound of the chapel bell and the stentorian voice of Dr. Hopkins, pass into the Gethsemane of the examination room. Very, they will sweat great drops as of blood before they get through. About eighty new boys have been applied for admission into the school; and many will begin their career at the top of the ladder as "pros." There are about two hundred students in all.

Dr. Hopkins, the only one of his kind, is happy at the opening of the school. He has just returned from a jaunt through the polytechnic schools of Germany, France and Russia. He is full of new ideas in regard to the school, and has many improvements in the course to make at some future time. He sees before him a prosperous year for the school.

Professor Lane is walking around welcoming the old back, and making everybody feel at home.

One good feature of the Technological is the thoroughness in studies required even to the third and fourth year. As a rule in colleges, when a student passes "top" successfully he is sure of graduation. Not so here. Students must keep up to the standard to the last. The student is liable to be dropped even after middle term examination in the fourth year, and not until he has passed the June examinations in the senior year can he count on his diploma. For instance, the middle class last year numbered twenty-eight, now it numbers eighteen. All of the twenty may not graduate yet. Beware the ides of February and June.

Many improvements have been made in both buildings this summer. A room has been partitioned off on the fourth floor, where the younger boys will be quartered.

All the walls have been retouched and repaired, so that the whole building looks clean and nice. Even the cloak room, which formerly was an eyesore to all, has been whitewashed and painted till it presents quite a respectable appearance. Improvements are seen in many places.

Two fraternities are in active operation at the Alpha Tau Omega state and chapter of twenty of her old men, having lost four by graduation. Sigma Alpha Epsilon has nine old men, and is spiking the new ones right and left. As to the amount to the non-graduates, the Greeks work on the new men, and in thrilling whispers, many a weird tale of initiations in the basement, and even in the culvert over North avenue on the way home to dinner.

The shops have been very busy all the summer, the class of work turned out being exceptionally good. The Wilson compass, constructed under the direction of Mr. J. S. Moore, was Kline, formerly of Macon, is now general superintendent of the Mexican National railroad, with control over 1,200 miles of the finest road on earth. Other Georgians hold responsible positions with railroads there, and they are highly contented.

As another evidence of Mexico's advancement, Dr. Powell states that THE CONSTITUTION is frequently sent there.

The grossest ideas prevail here as to the characteristics of the Mexican people and the state of society there.

The "greaser" is not a type of the Mexican gentleman, no more than the negro represents our highest grade of citizenship. In truth, there is less intercourse between the extreme castes of Mexican society than here.

The better grade of Mexicans are not treacherous and malignant. They are very peaceable and will enter with the ardor of wholesomeness into both friendships and enmities. This applies to their dealing among themselves as well as to strangers. They cannot do too much to express their love for friends, nor hate too hard an enemy.

The social and political status of Mexico is secure. Things are not on the verge of an upheaval. Their government is liberal and permanent. They have full confidence in it. President Diaz is a noble, broad-minded man fully capable to meet his vast responsibility, and he enjoys the confidence and respect of his people. The whole country is prosperous and it may be said, harmonious.

The reports sent out regarding the political status in Mexico have been grievously exaggerated. Many are commercial speculators who are news "fakes." For instance: The report sent out from Chicago a few weeks ago, purporting to be based on authentic information from Mexico, but having its origin in San Francisco, which predicted the positive disruption and overthrow of the Diaz government, was absolutely void of foundation.

There is not a condition or a feature of Mexican politics that could even suggest, much less warrant, such a statement. Any man who will study the situation even casually must at once denounce these upheaval fast overthrow tales as falsehoods. Those who make such reports know they are untrue.

These reports do doubt are often put in circulation by speculators and stock liners for the purpose of depreciating the value of certain valuable Mexican stocks which they want to buy. They jeopardize the good name and property of a whole country to advance their own selfish interests.

That affairs in Mexico are thoroughly secure is proved by the unhesitating way the natives invest their money in all kinds of developments.

Our own relations with Mexico at present are another evidence of that fact. The United States has wisely placed the Mexican government on a high plane of recognition as any foreign power, and Minister Ryan now goes as much salary as the minister to England.

That sensational episode of Calero Garzo, the Texo-Mexican, was a "fake." Notwithstanding the alarming reports sent out not fifty people about the city where it all occurred know today that such a man ever existed, or that he crossed the Rio Grande. He simply came over on a wild robbing expedition with a handful of reckless Texans, and yet the world was thrown into the greatest excitement about it.

Americans are in demand in Mexico as teachers, preachers and developers. No finer country can be found anywhere, and certainly none where surer and quicker results follow labor.

Dr. Powell will return to Mexico in about two weeks. He has with him two young men, sons of wealthy natives, who are to enter Richmond college. He expects to bring some Mexican students to our Georgia schools before long. Dr. Powell says that the Mexicans are anxious to establish pleasant commercial relations with the United States, and that is one reason why they are sending so many children to our schools and colleges.

RED MEN'S DAY.

THE TECH OPENS.

School opens with Two Hundred Students.

AN INCREASE OF OVER FIFTY.

Most Promising Outlook for the School. Dr. Hopkins's Trip to Europe. The Opening.

The Technological school opened yesterday morning. The campus was alive with boys and men. There were old students returning to serve on their unexpired terms, and there were new students just entering. There were fathers and mothers who came along to give "my boy" a good send-off on the road to learning and whither in his ear a last bit of advice or parental admonition.

It was a sight worth seeing. You could easily tell the law recruit fresh from the soil from the veteran senior or over-confident "muddler." There were all kinds of boys. Here was a group of fiery, untrained boys just entering upon the joys of a collegian's life. There was a knot of new "rats" with a shivering morning, gazing open-eyed, open-mouthed at the machinery and watching the workmen. Some of the new boys were a study. Here is one who looks as if they drained off some old pond and found him. He stands for an hour listening to the clock-like stroke of the glisten'g engine. He reads all the notices and signs on the walls with the deliberation and air of an antiquarian solving the problem looked up in some Egyptian hieroglyphics. He pores over the bulletin boards as if the notices and schedules were more interesting than all things else.

Today is examination day for applicants. Many are going to walk the dark and thorny path of preparation without passing an examination; while others, at the sound of the chapel bell and the stentorian voice of Dr. Hopkins, pass into the Gethsemane of the examination room. Very, they will sweat great drops as of blood before they get through. About eighty new boys have been applied for admission into the school; and many will begin their career at the top of the ladder as "pros." There are about two hundred students in all.

Dr. Hopkins, the only one of his kind, is happy at the opening of the school. He has just returned from a jaunt through the polytechnic schools of Germany, France and Russia. He is full of new ideas in regard to the school, and has many improvements in the course to make at some future time. He sees before him a prosperous year for the school.

Professor Lane is walking around welcoming the old back, and making everybody feel at home.

One good feature of the Technological is the thoroughness in studies required even to the third and fourth year. As a rule in colleges, when a student passes "top" successfully he is sure of graduation. Not so here. Students must keep up to the standard to the last. The student is liable to be dropped even after middle term examination in the fourth year, and not until he has passed the June examinations in the senior year can he count on his diploma. For instance, the middle class last year numbered twenty-eight, now it numbers eighteen. All of the twenty may not graduate yet. Beware the ides of February and June.

Many improvements have been made in both buildings this summer. A room has been partitioned off on the fourth floor, where the younger boys will be quartered.

All the walls have been retouched and repaired, so that the whole building looks clean and nice. Even the cloak room, which formerly was an eyesore to all, has been whitewashed and painted till it presents quite a respectable appearance. Improvements are seen in many places.

Two fraternities are in active operation at the Alpha Tau Omega state and chapter of twenty of her old men, having lost four by graduation. Sigma Alpha Epsilon has nine old men, and is spiking the new ones right and left. As to the amount to the non-graduates, the Greeks work on the new men, and in thrilling whispers, many a weird tale of initiations in the basement, and even in the culvert over North avenue on the way home to dinner.

The shops have been very busy all the summer, the class of work turned out being exceptionally good. The Wilson compass, constructed under the direction of Mr. J. S. Moore, was

NEWS OF SOCIETY.

The Marriage of Mr. Will Hill and Miss Grace Cooke.

A PRETTY, THOUGH QUIET, WEDDING

Which Joined Two Popular Young People—Other Events in Society's Domain—Points and Personalities.

A very beautiful, though quiet, wedding was that which united Mr. Will Hill and Miss Grace Cooke at the home of Mrs. S. C. Venable, on Morris avenue, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Venable is one of the most elegant homes in Atlanta, and very roomy on this occasion had its grace heightened by brilliant lights and regal flowers.

The long drawing room, in which the ceremony occurred, was entirely adorned in pink roses and red foliage, the pillars of the folding doors being entwined with red and white, and many bowls of rich roses being placed on tables and pedestals.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. Orr Venable. She was an exquisite vision of girlish grace and beauty in the soft gray gown, which seemed a part of her refined personality. The material was Bedford cord, finished with a rich feather band, and a charming "Paris hat," with a veil and gloves, all gray to match, completed the toilet. She carried a bouquet of white roses and a white hair fern.

She was met by the groom at the end of the hall, where Rev. Dr. Hopkins, in a beautiful ceremony of the Episcopal church, Mr. Fulton Colville was best man and Miss Lillian Venable first bridesmaid and little Charley Hill was second bridesmaid and little Miss Rob Venable maid of honor.

Miss Venable was very handsome in a pale rose crepe de chine, trimmed with black chiffon, and the little maid of honor was a vision of beauty in a picture in a quality brocade blue silk gown with short waist and high, puffed sleeves.

Meister Charley Hill wore a handsome "Little Lord Fauntleroy" suit and a white bow tie.

Mrs. S. C. Venable, the sister of the bride, was lovely in an elegant gown of gray satin duchesse; diamond ornaments.

Mrs. William Venable was a regal figure in a gown of pale old rose-water silk, with jetted lace draperies; diamonds.

Miss Mary Davis wore a handsome white crepe de chine trimmed with black chiffon.

Among those present were Mrs. S. C. Venable, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Meador, Mr. and Mrs. Will Montgomery, Dr. and Mrs. William P. Nicholson, Misses Hurd, Mrs. Hill, sister of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Will Venable, Mr. and Mrs. Orr Venable, Mrs. Ben Hill, Miss Carrie Thompson, Miss Nora Earnest, Mr. Jim McKelvin, Mr. Frank Meador, Mr. Tom Miller, Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. Carter, Mr. Andy Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brandon, Mr. Edgar Thompson, Mr. John J. Fahey, Mr. E. B. Stahlman, Mr. Alex Doyle.

After the ceremony the guests enjoyed delightful refreshments served in the drawing room. The array of elegant presents was simply dazzling. Among them was a superb solid silver service, a gift from a number of Mr. Hill's young friends. The Venable families gave elegant sets of china and cut glass. There were many other elegant and beautiful presents testifying the popularity of the young people. The happy pair drove in the gloaming to the pretty home awaiting them on Irish street.

Mr. William P. Hill is one of the most prominent young men in Georgia. He is a son of the late Dr. John S. Hill, who was Senator Ben Hill's elder brother. In every way Mr. Hill is worthy the name he bears. A brilliant young man, the son of honor and integrity, he enjoys the fullest confidence and highest admiration of all who know him. He is a man of noble character, one who has made an enviable reputation in his chosen profession; and he possesses all those qualities, which inspire warm friendships. No young man in Atlanta is more popular, and hearty indeed will be the congratulations of all who know him.

Miss Grace Cooke has spent a good deal of her time in Europe, and is a most accomplished and charming young woman. She is a daughter of the late Dr. John S. Hill, who was Senator Ben Hill's elder brother. In every way Miss Cooke is worthy the name she bears. A brilliant young woman, the daughter of honor and integrity, she enjoys the fullest confidence and highest admiration of all who know her. No young woman in Atlanta is more popular, and hearty indeed will be the congratulations of all who know her.

There was a happy wedding last night at the residence of the Walker street Methodist church. The contracting parties were Mr. Joe Anthony, the faithful and highly esteemed attaché of Judge Marshall J. Chandler, and Miss Lillian Kennedy, a lady of culture and rare attractiveness. The ceremony, which was performed impressively by the Rev. James K. Rice, was witnessed by a small party of friends of the bride and groom. The bride, who was dressed in a gown of white satin, was escorted by her brother, Mr. Joe Anthony. The groom, who was dressed in a suit of dark cloth, was escorted by his brother, Mr. Lillian Kennedy. The ceremony was a most beautiful and impressive one, and the young couple were united in the most beautiful and impressive manner.

A happy marriage occurred yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. F. L. Green, 305 Park street, the contracting parties being Miss Mary F. Green and Mr. John F. Green. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, and the scene was enhanced by a large display of most beautiful presents. Mr. Green is well known in Atlanta and extremely popular with his associates in the Southern Railroad and Steamship Association, while his bride has been an acknowledged belle. Mr. and Mrs. Green will reside on the Georgia Pacific for Memphis, Evansville and Indianapolis.

A very quiet and happy marriage occurred in Birmingham, Ala., on last Sunday, September 27th, in which Mr. Walter L. Forsyth was united to Miss Lillian Forsyth. The bride was escorted by her brother, Mr. Walter L. Forsyth. The groom, who was dressed in a suit of dark cloth, was escorted by his brother, Mr. Lillian Forsyth. The ceremony was a most beautiful and impressive one, and the young couple were united in the most beautiful and impressive manner.

LAST DAY'S RACES.

End of a Successful Season of the Brooklyn Jockey Club.

AND THE FIGHT WITH THE POOLROOMS.

The Races at Latonia Park—The Struggle Between the Baseball Clubs—Result of Games Played Yesterday.

GRAVESEND, September 30.—Today ended the Brooklyn Jockey Club's last meeting, and while the card developed nothing of a sensational character, it was a fitting climax to the most successful meeting. The fight with the poolrooms has been an item of considerable cost to the association, yet President Philip J. Dwyer said today that he could congratulate himself on having scored a victory that, in starting out, he hardly dared to expect. In carrying out the fight he had been compelled to ask the public to put up with many annoying inconveniences; yet the crowds that were present daily enabled him to feel that the public was with him in the struggle.

The total amount of money distributed during the meeting was $146,774, which was divided among eighty-two different winners. D. F. Pulisier heads the list with $10,220; P. J. Dwyer and son are second with $9,908; D. F. Dwyer ranks third with $8,700.

The track was in good condition and the racing quite enjoyable. Four favorites won, which was surprisingly good for a "get-away" day.

First race, purse $1,000, five furlongs, Kingston won, Reckon second, Laughing Water third. Time, 1:15.

Second race, purse $1,000, mile and a sixteenth, Raceland won, Castaway II second, India Rubber third. Time, 1:50.

Third race, purse $1,000, six furlongs, Cynosurus won, Madrid second, Hurly third. Time, 1:02.

Fourth race, purse $1,000, half mile, $1,500 added, mile and a quarter, Port Chester won, Strathmore second, Terrier third. Time, 2:30.

Fifth race, purse $1,000, five furlongs, Bengal won, Bria Colt second, Lady Superior third. Time, 1:03.

At Latonia Park. CINCINNATI, September 30.—Favorites won three of the races at Latonia today, and the other three winners were moderately well backed. The track was not very fast and only moderately good time was made.

First race, mile and twenty yards, Insouciance won, Grandpa second, Tenacity third. Time, 1:38.

Second race, one mile, Prince of Darkness won, Fleur de Lis second, Rock third. Time, 1:44.

Third race, mile and a half, Philora won, Little Nell second, Colonel Wheatley third. Time, 1:46.

Fourth race, four and a half furlongs, The Queen won, Little Nell second, Missa third. Time, 0:57.

Fifth race, five furlongs, Great Hope won, John Winkie second, Rotondine third. Time, 1:03.

THE RALLY TONIGHT.

The Young Men's Christian Association Rally Tonight.

Tonight the grand rally of young men at the Young Men's Christian Association building will occur.

All classes of Atlanta's young men will be represented, and the rally promises to be a great success.

Governor Northern, Mayor Hemphill, members of the city council, prominent Atlanta ministers and prominent young business men will be present to encourage the work.

The meeting will be given up to the young men for their enjoyment until 9 o'clock, which the most prominent of the guests will be called on for speeches.

The following topics will be discussed: The Christian Brotherhood and the Necessity for Combined Effort; Enthusiasm and Zeal for the Fall and Winter Work; The Ladies' Auxiliary; Brief Talks on the Gymnasium; How to Enjoy Atlanta; The Young Men Scattered Among the Boarding Houses to Become Interested in the Work of the Association; The Atlanta Young Men's Christian Association; The Future of the City, Its Past, Present and Future.

The young men interested in the rally have been doing all in their power to make it a grand success. All young men are invited to be present.

THE MEETINGS HAVE ENDED.

The Close of an Interesting Series at West End Baptist Church.

The West End Baptist church closed last night, and Rev. F. C. McConell will return to his home in Gainesville this morning.

There has been the most interesting series of meetings ever held by the church since its organization. While there were not so many auditors as on former occasions when Mr. McConell preached here, there has been a goodly number, and the congregation extended and interested.

Everybody invited to the grand opening at Venable's new and elegant saloon, 27 North Pryor street, from 10 o'clock to 2 p.m., today. Open from 5 a.m. to 10 p.m.

BAPTIST MISSIONS.

An Interesting Statement Concerning the Missionary Work.

Yesterday afternoon the central committee of the Woman's Baptist Missionary Society, of Georgia, held the first quarterly meeting of the year in Dr. J. E. Hawthorne's study in the First Baptist church.

Mr. B. F. Abbott, vice president, presided, and Mrs. N. N. Calloway acted as recording secretary in the absence of Mrs. V. C. Norcross.

Mrs. Stainback Wilson, the corresponding secretary, read the following report for the past quarter:

Seventy-nine missionary societies and mission bands, representing twenty-eight associations, have contributed to the foreign missions.....$390.02

Home missions.....215.24

State missions.....638.75

Other objects.....855.43

Total.....$2,109.09

Boxes filled with clothing, etc., to the amount of $55 have been sent to missions on the frontiers by the societies, and several others are preparing boxes to be sent this winter.

Letters received, 103.

Letters written, 246.

Postals received, 13.

Postals written, 160.

Mrs. Wilson reported the work in a flourishing condition.

Seventeen new societies have been organized since the convention in Hawkinsville last April.

Mrs. Wilson devotes her entire time to the work, and is kept busy with an extensive correspondence.

The work of the Baptist women is becoming an important factor in the mission field of the denomination, and the meetings of the woman's missionary unions of the state and southern Baptist conventions, which are to be held in LaGrange and Atlanta next April and May, are looked forward to with much interest by the ladies throughout the state.

The central committee will not meet again until the close of the second quarter, when it will be announced by Mrs. Wilson, the corresponding secretary.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

An invoice and transportation entry of a large amount of decorative china was received at the collector of customs' office yesterday. The goods are from the Netherlands, bought by Mr. Julius L. Brown. They are valued at nearly a thousand guilders.

STANLEY PLEASED

By an Agreement on the Part of the Fidelity and Casualty Company

NOT TO PROSECUTE IF THE DEFICIENCY

Is Made Good—A New Postal Line Established, to Begin on Sunday—An Interesting Examination.

Indications are now decidedly favorable for a satisfactory settlement of Emmet B. Stanley's affair.

Yesterday morning the ex-superintendent of the money order department was visited at the jail by Mr. W. C. Glenn. The two had quite a long talk together. It was evidently of a pleasant nature, for the sick and feeble man felt and looked much better than the day before.

The call was in regard to the defalcation. Mr. Glenn is representing the Fidelity and Casualty company, and he assured Stanley that it will not prosecute him, should the amount be made good by him.

The dejected man brightened up at this. It is his desire to replace the money and regain his former standing. In reply to the statement of the attorney he made no definite answer.

On Saturday Mrs. Stanley is expected to arrive in the city from Denver, and upon her the young man is waiting for further action. He is now making no further endeavor to furnish bond, but will confer with his mother and then act.

The case against Stanley was filed with the clerk of the circuit court yesterday. The grand jury will act on it next week.

Not a Big Haul.

Deputy Marshal George B. Dickey yesterday brought to Atlanta Jim Crawford, a negro boy eighteen years old. On Tuesday the Mineral Bluff postoffice in Fannin county was robbed of a dollar and guits was fixed upon Crawford. He was bound over and in default of bond was committed to Fulton county jail.

A Big Convenience.

General Superintendent James E. White, of the railway mail service, and Mr. C. W. Vickery, superintendent of the railway mail service of Washington, were in the city yesterday. They came to confer with General Manager Green, of the Richmond and Danville, in regard to having additional postal service.

As a result there will be additional lines of postal cars on the Richmond and Danville line, between Atlanta and Washington. There will be a postal car attached to the limited, No. 38, going north. This leaves at 2:25 o'clock p. m. There will be another train, No. 11, coming south, which arrives in Atlanta at 11:30 o'clock p. m. These will prove of very great convenience, as there has long been need of them. The addition will be made on Sunday for the first time.

An Interesting Examination.

An examination was held in the circuit courtroom at the custom house yesterday for clerks and copyists. This is held in every state and territory. Mr. Charles L. Snyder, a member of the central board of the civil service examinations visiting one state after another. He will return to Georgia on October 17th, going to Macon, where the state examination will next be held.

Yesterday there were seventeen applicants for departmental clerkships, three for the positions of copyists, and one took a medical pension examination. The first was tested in orthography, penmanship, copying, letter writing, construction of sentences, arithmetic, anatomy, physiology, chemistry, materia medica, therapeutics, general pathology, theory and practice of medicine, surgery, medical jurisprudence, toxicology and hygiene. The one applicant who took this examination is the first of the past 600 candidates.

The papers will be forwarded to the civil service commission at Washington and marked by the central board of examiners. The candidate is then notified of his standing. If he has received a percentage of 70, his name is put on a list of eligibles of the state in which he lives. Whenever there is a vacancy the names of the first three on the list of the state next in order are presented, and from them the one needed is chosen. Today at 9 o'clock there will be an examination for the railway mail service.

Found Him Possessing Hunting.

Deputy Marshal Nelson McDonald left on Tuesday for Harrison county, having a warrant for the arrest of M. N. Griffin, for running and working in an illicit distillery. For several hours he made a thorough search, and at last found him "possum hunting." He awaited his chance, and finally caught Griffin. In default of bond Judge Haight yesterday committed him to jail.

H. C. Matthews and W. Reeves, of Madison county, were yesterday arrested by Deputy Marshal W. W. Brooks, on the charge of hauling whisky from an illicit distillery. There was insufficient evidence, and the two men were released.

GRAVE ROBBERS.

Shrouded by Night, Invade the Brunswick Cemetery.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—Is the grave robber at work in Brunswick? Startling rumors are still flying around in regard to the supposed grave robbery at Oak Grove cemetery a few nights ago, but nothing definite can be discovered. The night on which the cemetery was invaded was peculiarly fitted for a ghastly deed. All day heavy clouds had covered the sun, and late night only a few stars relieved the intense blackness of the sky.

Trees of heavy foliage surrounded the cemetery, through which the electric light beams struggled few and far between. Possibly, should a crime have been committed, the evildoers anticipated a rainfall to destroy all traces of their work.

It is in evidence that at midnight, or in the early morning of Thursday last, carriages halted on the south side of the cemetery and a white man and negro alighted. The negro carried a shovel, and the handle of the shovel had whitewash on it. Both parties went into the cemetery. After remaining in the cemetery for some time, they returned, the negro carrying the shovel and the white man carrying something in front of him.

That Looked Like a Coffin. They hastily placed their burden in the carriage and drove rapidly away. Then, on Friday night, another carriage drove to the cemetery, and two men entered and were lost to sight.

An investigation of the graves in the locality where the men alighted has been made, and they bear evidence of having been disturbed. Tracks, coming and going, were discovered, but the recent rains have nearly effaced them. The testimony of a number of witnesses is that either a murder has been hidden in the gloom of the city of the dead, or it has been robbed of some of its sacred relics.

A close watch will be kept on the cemetery, and, in the meantime, the police are searching for clues to solve the mystery.

RELIGIOUS REVIVALS.

Largely Attended Meetings at Griffin and LaGrange—Many Conversions.

GRiffin, Ga., September 29.—[Special.]—There has been in progress here for several weeks one of the most remarkable revivals in the history of this city. There is no undue excitement nor display of religious enthusiasm, but the city is moved from center to circumference, from the highest to the lowest walks of life. Notably, the very leaders of the young people of social Griffin have renounced the world and taken upon themselves vows of consecration to God and his people. Men who have grown old in sin have turned from their evil ways and united with God's people. The First Baptist church, where the meetings are held, has taken in about fifty new members, and quite a number have united with other churches. The mothers and fathers in Israel are praising God for the rich harvest of young souls being reaped. A large number of converts will be baptized tonight. Thirty-nine members have been baptized at Devotee chapel within the week and still the good work goes on.

Religious Revival at LaGrange.

LaGrange, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—A most interesting meeting is in progress at the Baptist church. Rev. G. S. Tamm, the pastor, preaches every night to large and attentive congregations. The interest, which is so general, was first aroused by the sermons of Rev. Dr. J. De Witt Burkhead, of Montgomery, whose eloquence and unique method of presenting truth were much admired. Last night Mr. Tamm immersed two young men and four young ladies, one being a married lady. One had been baptized on the Sunday night previous, and two await the ordinance. Rev. W. D. Powell, who arrived from Mexico today, accompanied by the young ladies for the Southern Female college, will preach tonight. Rev. Mr. Pogue, of Atlanta, occupied the Presbyterian pulpit yesterday. Several persons were received into the church, which is now without a pastor.

COBB COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Business Transacted by the Convention in Marietta.

MARIETTA, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—The Cobb county Sunday school convention has just closed. It met at Synnys in the Methodist church Saturday. The regular officers were present. They were the president, Colonel E. Faw, and the secretary, Mr. Walter Sessions.

Delegates from all over the county were present, and a good attendance was had. The reports from the twenty-six schools in the county showed that considerable work was taken in the work in the county, and that the cause was flourishing. Mr. S. L. Brinkley read an essay and made some remarks in an earnest and impressive manner. In the afternoon the convention was addressed by Rev. Jesse Oslin, now of Arkansas, and by Captain J. C. Hendrix, of Atlanta, and the Hon. Milton Cantor, of Decatur. These addresses were earnest, practical and forcible, and greatly enjoyed by the hearers.

The Sunday services began with a mass meeting, before which Miss McMillan, of Acworth, gave a recitation, the title of which was "There is a God in Me." It was well rendered and greatly enjoyed. W. R. Power then made an address, after which Rev. V. E. Mangot preached a sermon. In the afternoon Colonel W. S. Neal, of Marietta, made a beautiful and pointed address, and others made short talks.

Statistics were collected of the churches and Sunday schools in the county, and show the following facts: Methodist churches, 23; Methodist Sunday schools, 30; Baptist churches, 28; Baptist Sunday schools, 10; Presbyterian churches, 7; Presbyterian Sunday schools, 7; Episcopal churches, 1; Episcopal Sunday schools, 1; Christian churches, 2; Christian Sunday schools, 2; union Sunday schools, 5. Total churches, 68; total Sunday schools, 44.

A Cotton Compress Wanted.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—Several prominent business men of this city went over to Dothan, Ala., yesterday to examine the cotton compress there with a view of erecting one in this city. A compress much needed here, and every one hopes that the movement now on foot will prove successful. There is no better opening in the state for a compress than Thomasville.

But Sometimes They Can't.

DAWSON, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—Henry Dickson, who had been committed to jail for robbing a drunken friend, sprang out of the second story of the courthouse and made a dash for liberty. Everybody gave chase, including all the negroes in town, and Dickson, proving a poor sprinter, was captured under a house where he had slipped to rest. He wasn't hurt by his high jump, and exclaimed: "Everybody will get away if they kin."

A Protracted Meeting on Hand.

HEPZIBAH, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—A protracted meeting has been in progress in the Baptist church at this place the past week. Much interest was felt from the beginning, large audiences attending the services day and night. Rev. T. J. Beck, D. D., pastor, was assisted by Rev. J. D. Chapman, of Milledgeville.

Counterfeit Dollars.

GREENVILLE, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—Counterfeit dollars, bearing the date of 1889, are circulating freely about Greenville. The imitation is perfect, but the counterfeit is lighter than the genuine, and presents a tarnished appearance.

When you feel a general lassitude and breaking down of the system, Angostura Bitters will work a wonderful change. Dr. J. G. B. Siegert &amp; Sons, Manufacturers.

HEIRS TO A FORTUNE.

Cobb County People Who May Yet Be in Luck,

IF ALL THE INDICATIONS HOLD GOOD.

The Story of the Edwards Estate Retold, with Some Points of Genealogy Interest.

MARIETTA, Ga., September 30.—[Special.]—Some of our Cobb county people are being feasted upon a liberal supply of hope if they get nothing else.

The dazzling fortune of $200,000,000 is held out before them to reach for and obtain.

It came about in this way: About fourteen years ago Mr. Simeon Edwards, of Cobb county, received a letter from his nephew, George Edwards, of Mississippi, stating that a man by the name of Robert Edwards owned a piece of real estate in New York city away back in its early history—perhaps in its colonial times. He leased it to some persons, company or corporation for a period of ninety-nine years. The lease expired not many years ago and then by law should have gone back to the rightful owner, but it had been so long since the lease began and the records had become so lost or obscured that it became a matter of much difficulty to tell in whom the correct title was.

The Family History.

He requested Mr. Simeon Edwards to give him some facts in regard to the family history. This was answered and the facts in a measure given. Nothing more was heard of it till August, when George Edwards again wrote, stating that there was an estate of $200,000,000 belonging to the heirs of Robert Edwards and unclaimed by the heirs, and asking if there was a Simeon Edwards, the son of Robert Edwards who died in 1848 at the age of eighty-five years. A general reply was made to this, in which Mr. Simeon Edwards was rather non-committal, and asking George what he knew about it.

George replied that he knew very little except what Simeon had previously given him in a letter written about fourteen years ago.

The matter was then turned over to Colonel A. N. Edwards, an attorney at law at Marietta, and grandson of Mr. Simeon Edwards, to investigate and get up evidence. This he is doing and a number of letters have been received.

The Evidence Obtained.

The evidence so far obtained shows the following as to kinship and the right to inherit: Robert Edwards had left as his heirs two sons, Reuben and John. Reuben was born in Virginia, lived till 1842 and died at the age of eighty-five years. He left a large family of children to inherit his estate, of whom Simeon was the youngest and is the only one now living. Simeon Edwards, our Cobb county man, is thus a grandson, and perhaps the only one, of the original Robert Edwards. He has nephews and nieces scattered throughout the United States who would inherit along with him this immense estate.

The history of Simeon Edwards, briefly told, is as follows: He was born in Georgia, and lived in Cobb county since 1833, living most of the time near Powder Springs, Ga. He is a successful farmer, and his large family of children are mostly farmers, are regarded as the best and most successful farmers here.

Little is known of John Edwards, the other son of Robert Edwards, or his heirs. He was born in Virginia, and after his death his heirs lived in different parts of Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama.

Family Bibles and other records now extant, it is claimed, establish and authenticate these points of family history.

The Records of the Estate.

As to the genuineness of the estate, lawyers are making investigation, and it is now claimed that the record of the original deed to this valuable property to Robert Edwards has now, after diligent search, been found, and that its value runs away up in the millions, as stated.

The heirs are so much interested in it that a convention was held in Washington, D. C., in this month to take steps in regard to the matter, and a committee was appointed to push the matter for what it worth.

The many friends of Uncle Simeon would be glad to see him meet with this good fortune, and hope that it will prove a reality.

THE LARGEST DRY GOODS, CARPET AND FURNITURE HOUSE IN THE SOUTH.

Are now ready to show you a line of DRESS GOODS, SILKS, VELVETS and TRIMMINGS, such as has never, heretofore, been their good fortune to bring out.

Many of our Novelty Dress Goods are of our own Direct Importation, and cannot be duplicated in this country. In order to increase our direct importation through the Atlanta custom house, we intend to sell these goods

At a Very Small Profit!

—AND, AS—

THE BEST IS ALWAYS THE CHEAPEST.

It will pay you to see these goods before you buy. This week, on September 24th, we received through the Atlanta custom house 500 dozen of our well-known "Piedmont" warranted Real Kid Gloves, price $1.00 dozen. "Materna" Real Kid Gloves, at $1.25. If bought in this country these goods could not be retailed under $1.50 and $1.75. Try our Kid Glove Kid Gloves. We sell the best "Blairitz" six-button length Kid Gloves at $1.

We are sole agents for Atlanta for the well-known "Trefousse" Kid Gloves, warranted the best kid glove in the world. Try our $1 "Gloria" Silk Umbrella.

Cloaks, Cloaks, Cloaks!

No such stock ever shown in this country as we have for Ladies', Misses' and Children's wear. They are marvels of beauty, in style, shape and fit.

Every department is filled to overflowing, as all of our fall goods are in. Everybody is invited to call. It will prove to your interest to do so, even if you are not ready to buy.

NEW CARPETS, NEW FURNITURE!

THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, September 30.—The event which in anticipation has disturbed the stock market so seriously and for so long a time, came actually to pass today, the directors of Missouri Pacific finally passing the dividend for the quarter. Not only was the dividend not earned, but the company was in a corresponding character. The influence which this event had upon the market was material, however, and the effect upon the stock of the company was of a corresponding character. The influence which this event had upon the market was material, however, and the effect upon the stock of the company was of a corresponding character.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

CHICAGO, September 30.—The market all started strong and higher this morning, but with equal unanimity, they ended with a reaction which left them lower than the closing figures of yesterday. In the wheat market, the reaction was the most marked. The wheat market was the most marked. The wheat market was the most marked.

THE COTTON MARKETS.

ATLANTA, September 30.—The largest feature in today's market was the buying for European account of about forty thousand shares of stock. The cause of the large demand was accounted for by the fact that stocks bought at present need not be paid for before the next settling day, which takes place in two weeks. This large foreign demand steadied the market, but, outside of this, the home demand for stocks was small. The Missouri Pacific dividend was the dividing line, and a downward movement followed at 12 o'clock.

GRAIN, PROVISIONS, ETC.

ATLANTA, September 30.—Reports of lighter foreign arrivals and the buying for foreign account yesterday caused rather a firm opening this morning, but from the opening to the close nearly everything in the shape of news of a gossamer nature was heard. New York parties were liberal sellers right from the start.

THE COTTON MARKETS.

ATLANTA, September 30.—The largest feature in today's market was the buying for European account of about forty thousand shares of stock. The cause of the large demand was accounted for by the fact that stocks bought at present need not be paid for before the next settling day, which takes place in two weeks. This large foreign demand steadied the market, but, outside of this, the home demand for stocks was small. The Missouri Pacific dividend was the dividing line, and a downward movement followed at 12 o'clock.
